A INTERNATIONAL PROJECT IN SUPPORT OF TALENTED YOUNG PHOTOGRAPHERS

Opening of gute aussichten at House of Photography, Deichtorhallen Hamburg, March 9, 2017

THE PROJECT
gute aussichten – new german photography is a project set up in 2004 by Josefine Raab and Stefan Becht as a private initiative in support of talented young photographers. The annual competition is the core activity of the project to showcase the final portfolios submitted to all German universities, universities of applied sciences and academies offering a photography degree course. A maximum of five projects per institution are eligible for entry to the competition. The winners, who are selected by a jury of well-known experts, can look forward to a public launch in a wide range of exhibitions, promotional campaigns and media. Since the start of gute aussichten we have organized more than 145 exhibits for our award winners and since 2015 we are a non-profit organization.

THE PHILOSOPHY

gute aussichten is first and foremost an idea. Our philosophy is to create a bridge linking young, largely unknown artists with all those inspired by photography. Our appeal is to collectors and exhibitors of photography works, or anyone who uses or simply enjoys viewing photographic art. We see our role as communicators – in the widest sense – and that is why we set up diverse promotional campaigns and media ideally suited to the chosen aim.

THE JURY

The jury convenes as a panel of invited experts. Each year the jury members include a renowned artist and a number of changing representatives from the art and culture scene in Germany. Andreas Gursky joined us for the first two years and was followed by the photographers and artists Juergen Teller, Thomas Demand, the painter Norbert Bisky, and in 2009, the video and photo artist Annelies Strba. In 2010, we welcomed photographer Thomas Ruff, in 2011 the artist Jürgen Klauke, in 2012 the photographer Thomas Struth, in 2013 the photographer Hans-Christian Schink, in 2014 the British artist Paul Graham, in 2015 the Austrian filmmaker, photographer and writer Ulrich Seidel, in 2016 the German photographer Herlinde Koelbl, in 2017 the photographer Boris Becker and in 2018 German artist Elger Esser. Our cooperation partners from the exhibition and media sectors have permanent, and also partly alternating, jury membership.

MEDIA // CATALOGUE_BOOK // SPECIAL_JOURNAL // WEBSITEs // MEDIA COOPs

A catalogue_book (G/E) is published each competition year featuring detailed profiles of the winners and their work. From this year we have produced the catalogue as well as other publications with Munich publisher Sieveking. In cooperation with our media partners, at least 140,000 copies of the annual gute aussichten_Special_Journal (G/E) are being issued. This publication is our basic communication medium and is distributed free of charge at all exhibitions and promotional events. In addition to being circulated to the press and universities, it is also available as a special insert with the magazines of our media partners. These have previously included the magazine for pop culture, SPEX, the business magazine brand eins and the magazines brand eins, Dummy Magazine, enorm, ProfiFoto, Madame, Medium Magazine, Monopol, NEON, novum, Revue Magazine, Separée, sleek magazine as well as ZEIT Campus.

The mainstay of our communication is our website which is updated daily. Please visit https://www.guteaussichten.org for detailed information about all of the artists and works, updated news and planned exhibitions as well as full details about the entire project. Of course, we are also represented on the "social media networks" Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and LinkedIn. At https://www.guteaussichten.org/blog you can also access our own blog. For our local exhibitions we produce posters, invitation cards, flyers and postcards as standard.

NETWORK

Our independence and the continual expansion of the gute aussichten network (gute aussichten catches on quickly!) give us rapid and non-bureaucratic access to necessary resources. Thus even at short notice, we can turn unconventional ideas, promotions and presentations into reality, or collaborate with new cooperation partners.
